Information on the tax advance statement about costs

Do you know that you can also submit your tax advance statement in the Online Form Filling Application (ONYA)?

This is the easiest way to submit your tax advance statement, as the NTCA

- will pre-populate the statement with your personal data available and the data from previous statements,
- forward the completed statement electronically to the employer or payer you have specified.

The statement you filled in on the ONYA interface is stored by NTCA, so it can be edited, modified and resubmitted if necessary.

ONYA can be accessed on the NTCA website through the client gate, if you are registered therein.

Please fill in this statement in two copies, and hand it over to the payer before the accounting of your emoluments! In case of any changes in the data provided in the statement, you are obliged to make a new statement or withdraw your previous statement without any delay. One copy of the statement shall be retained by the payer, and the other copy shall be retained by you, together with the documents supporting the production of the tax return, within the term of limitation, i.e. until the end of the 5th year following the submission of the tax return. It is not necessary to present the documents certifying the costs that occurred in connection with the activity, it is enough to retain them.

If you request the deduction of your actually incurred itemized costs, and the costs deducted on the basis of your statement exceed the costs subsequently shown and actually certified in your tax return by 5 per cent of the costs specified in the statement, then you will be required to pay a penalty of 39 per cent on the difference, and if this generates a payment difference of more than HUF 10 thousand on the basis of your tax return, you shall pay a penalty of 12 per cent, too.

The payer shall not determine any tax advance on revenues from prime producer activity, if the private person certifies his/her prime producer legal status at the time of the payment at the latest. The payer shall not calculate any tax advance from an entrepreneur's revenues, either, if the private entrepreneur adds the number of the public document that certifies his/her legal status as entrepreneur on the document.

To point 1: you may ask for two types of cost deductions from your income from self-employed activities, for example from your commission, for the definition of the base of the tax advance: either the use of a cost ratio of 10 per cent, or the use of costs according to itemized expense settlement. In the case of selecting the itemized expense accounting, the expenses taken into consideration by the payer at the time of determining the tax advance may not exceed 50 per cent of the income. If certified costs exceed 50 per cent of the income, that can be enforced at the end of the year, in the tax return.

If you do not make this Statement, and no other eligible costs accounted without certificates occur, the payer will automatically use the 10 per cent expense ratio in the case of self-employed activities, i.e. 90 per cent of the income will be considered as your earnings for the definition of the tax advance.

You are required to apply consistently either the 10 per cent cost ratio, or the itemized cost accounting in the same way for all your incomes from self-employed activities in the fiscal year, including reimbursements received for self-employed activities. However, if the tax advance bases were defined by deducting the 10 per cent cost ratio, you may still use the itemized cost accounting for the definition of the tax base in your tax return, provided that you do not enforce the deduction of the 10 per cent cost ratio for any other incomes, either, in your tax return. On the other hand, if you selected itemized cost settlement for the tax advance, you may not use the 10 per cent cost ratio in your tax return at the end of the year.

To point 2: the provisions of point 1 are valid for reimbursements received regarding self-employed activities, too, the only difference is that the 50 per cent limit does not apply to reimbursements.

To point 3: in the case of incomes from not self-employed activities, e.g. from employment relation, an expense statement may be provided only if the payer or the employer pays reimbursements, too. If you do not ask for cost deduction, and have no costs that could be recognised without certificate according to the law, either, the total amount of the reimbursement shall be considered in the definition of the tax advance base.

To point 4: You may also declare that you wish to deduct expenses that can be recognised without certificates from the amount of the cost reimbursement related to non-independent activity. In this case, all other costs shall be considered accounted, so neither expense ratio, nor additional recognised expenses can be considered against the income.

To point 5: if you let out an apartment as a private person, you have the possibility of deducting the certified rent of a flat rented in another town, from that income. On the other hand, you may reduce your income under this title only if the period of the rents exceed 90 days, and the private person does not settle costs in connection with the rented flat, against income from other activity, or the certified rent paid by you is not refunded, even in part<sup>1</sup>.

You may indicate it to the payer tenant that you use this rule. In this case, the payer shall not determine any tax advance. Should you still have taxable income from renting the flat, you have to determine the tax advance on this income, and pay it until the 12th day of the month following the benefit.

To point 6: if you make this statement as a driver or driver's companion employed in domestic cargo or passenger transport, then, from your income received under the title of domestic mission exceeding 6 hours a day - as cost recognised without certificate - you may request the deduction of a flat daily allowance of HUF 3000 per day<sup>2</sup>.

If you use this settlement method, it is only costs directly related to the domestic operation of the car, certified with invoice or other document that you can account in addition to that. In the application of this rule, the category of domestic road transport services subject to licence includes the cargo or passenger transport activities for own purposes, in other words on own account, which could be legally extended to other persons as domestic road transport subject to licence.

A daily allowance may be accounted under this legal title if the period of the stay exceeds six hours per day, and the employer does not apply Article 3 of the Government decree for the mission, and no other benefits are provided on the extra costs of the mission, for instance accommodation and travel costs are not reimbursed.

To point 7: if you make this statement as a driver or driver's companion involved in international transport of goods and passengers, performing a foreign mission as an employee, or a foreign mission ordered by the payer, it is possible to deduct a HUF amount corresponding to EUR 60 from your daily allowance - as costs recognized without certificate - from your income received under the title of foreign mission<sup>3</sup> In this case, you may account only costs directly related to the operation of the car abroad, certified with invoices and other documents, i.e. an amount paid for accommodation abroad is not an acknowledged cost.

To point 8: if you make this statement, your statement made in points 1-7 will be taken into consideration by the payer or the employer continuously within the fiscal year, until the statement is withdrawn. If you do not make this statement, the payer or the employer will consider the statement made in points 1-7 for the given payment only.

To point 9: This point is filled in by the employer.
